Committee and Council Application

ULI Philadelphia Committees and Councils are interdisciplinary groups of members interested in mission oriented topic areas who come together to discuss best practices, exchange ideas, develop programs, and further the ULI mission of providing leadership in the responsible use of land and creating and sustaining thriving communities worldwide.

All ULI members who meet the below requirements may join a council. To ensure that you have the opportunity to serve in the most meaningful way, please limit your choices to the 2-3 councils or committees that you'd be most interested in joining. All councils meet regularly and require a regular time commitment.

For more information on the councils listed please visit philadelphia.uli.org.

Local Product Council Application

This page is only applicable if you're interested in applying to serve on a Local Product Council

Modeled after ULI's National Product Councils, Local Product Councils are small, interdisciplinary groups of members that provide opportunities to connect with peers, study cutting edge issues in depth, share information, and network with industry leaders.

1. Please rank your Local Product Council preferences on a scale of 1 to 4 (one being most desired council):

Housing

Ranking: _____

Mission: To understand the state of the local and regional housing market, identify the drivers of housing development and identify the challenges that the current development cycle has created. The Council will then explore policy, public/private and market based solutions to try and meet the demand for market rate, workforce and affordable housing.

Policy & Planning

Ranking: _____

Mission: To highlight best practices in planning, design and development from the region as an inspiration for members. Explore how ULI can influence city and regional policy and serve as a forum for discussion of issues, a convener and a resource.

Small- Scale & Impact Development

Ranking: _____

Mission: To leverage shared knowledge to facilitate and ignite small-scale and impactful development projects, explore catalytic projects that consider physical, economic, social, civic and environmental impacts and their 'nuts and bolts' planning and execution.

Technology & Competitiveness

Ranking: _____

Mission: To enhance the competitiveness of the Philadelphia region by evaluating technology related drivers of economic growth and the role of the real estate sector in the ecosystem supporting this growth. Our goal is to positively impact these drivers propelling regional attractiveness and growth.

2. Please tell us about yourself and why you are interested in serving on the council(s) selected above. What specific areas of expertise will you add to the council(s)? Please attach an additional page if necessary.

3. Have you served on a National Product Council? Yes No

4. Please attach a brief bio or resume.

In order to foster an engaging experience, Local Product Councils will go through a selection process. Selected applicants will be placed on one product council that best matches their professional experience and interests.

To Submit: Please return this application and required attachments to abby.rambo@uli.org. Please complete by Oct 1, 2017.

Council Expectations and Responsibilities

- Local Product Council members agree to an administrative fee for the year, payable on acceptance. Please contact ULI staff should you have a hardship adhering to the financial contribution.
 - Private Sector Fee: $95
 - Public Agency Fee: $50 (for employees of Nonprofit, Government, and Academic Institutions)
 - Young Leader Fee: $50 (for members under 35)
- Council members are expected to participate and cannot miss more than three unexcused meetings per calendar year
- Each council is responsible for planning a dynamic program of work
- All Council members must be current ULI members
